

21st – 27th September 2020

This week the society were involved in giving a talk to first years about the society and their student experience. Laura (year 3 Adult field), Chantelle (year 2 Adult field), Sam (year 2 Learning Disability field) and Ellis (year 1 Adult field) all gathered on the first floor of Allam Medical Building to do the talk. As most of the content was delivered online, including the talk by the society, the team wanted to make sure the new students got a feel of what the student experience really is – a community. The talk received great feedback.

Sam and Naomi held a stall at the Societies & Volunteering Fair Tuesday 22, Wednesday 23 and Thursday 24 September in a marquee outside the Students' Union. Many student nurses came along to say hello from all years and fields, seizing the opportunity to have a real-life conversation. They taught many students the 7 stages of handwashing and introduced them to sign language, learning how to say 'hello, my name is...'. As proud Learning Disability student nurses, Sam and Naomi were keen to utilise the opportunity to explore other methods of communication while wearing masks.

This week's Wellness Wednesday was around getting support, and Friday's blog centred around dissertation advice for our final year students from a Newly Qualified Nurse.

We end the week with 93 members and look forward to releasing content exclusively for our paid members.
